Project Title: The Loch Ness Monster (and Other Aquatic Cryptids)

I would like to use typical site navigation across the top, but could also see navigation floating along the side, either in a box or in ovals within a floating, semi-transparent curved rectangle. I'd also like to include links to other pages within my page, leading to the traditional myth of this creature, how it has been described/some images of it in a separate page, similar cryptids across different cultures on another, etc. I would like to use photography and illustrations to really highlight the content, as well as perhaps use different perspectives to go more in depth on the content on the different pages that will be linked.

In terms of navigation, I would like to organize the pages in this way:

- Home page/Intro introducing aquatic cryptids
- origins (of loch ness monster)
- Folklore
- Hoaxes
- Possible exotic large-animal species
- Sources

I am also considering including:

- mythology behind multiple aquatic cryptids
- similarities in physiology
